

Permitted use of the Melbard
HP-33s Survey and COGO programs.

This software and documentation is for individual use only. Note the copyright of this software and documentation. I grant permission for you to make individual copies of this software and documentation material for your own individual personal use. Permission is not given to anyone for the purpose of copying this software and related documentation material (or any derivative of it) for its distribution in anyway and/or for its sale (for profit or non-profit) without the signed written permission from the author Albert R. Melbard.

It is my intent for the software to be a benefit at no cost to the Civil Engineering and Land Surveying professions and for those working toward licensing since these programs run on the HP-33s, an NCEES approved calculator. I have spent many years refining this material into very functional and useful powerful programs and documentation that now have significant value. It may be tempting for some to assume that since this material is being provided to the profession at no cost that they can copy and further distribute these programs and documentation for their own credit and/or profit, however this is a violation of the copyright.